Online Resource Helps Businesses With Free Tax Forms and Tips

CARLSBAD, CA - February 9, 2001 – SaveWealth.com™, a leading portal in retirement and estate planning information, has just kicked open the doors on the SaveWealth 2000 Business Tax Center.

Courtesy of the SaveWealth Tax Center, business filers can now download the most popular 2000 tax forms and schedules for any size company, from small business to large corporations. All tax forms are accessible for free in Adobe Acrobat™ format.

SaveWealth.com has included new and improved features on this year's site, including timely information on 2000 tax law changes, descriptions of the different business forms, and tax software reviews. SaveWealth has brought back its interactive guide to help tax filers determine which 1040 to use, along with its free Find a Tax Pro tool. And after a brief hiatus, the 31 Tax Breaks special report is back, with all new tax breaks for the 2001 tax year.

“Business owners don't have a lot of time, and with today's complex tax laws, filing taxes takes up too much of it,” stated Scott Carr, Director of SaveWealth.com. “Our goal is to give taxpayers an edge in filing their taxes. Through our free Tax Center, business owners can download the tax forms and schedules they need quickly, and pocket the money they would normally spend on a call to their CPA.”

The SaveWealth Tax Center experts have been diligently working on upgrading the site since mid-2000. The site now incorporates over two dozen major improvements, designed to make the website easier to navigate and to read. SaveWealth.com has also enhanced its web servers to accommodate the thousands of visitors downloading tax forms daily. The SaveWealth Tax Center has also started an archive of previous IRS tax forms dating back to 1996.

The introduction of the 2000 SaveWealth Tax Center marks the third year that SaveWealth.com has eased the annual tax season rush with free tax forms. When SaveWealth.com launched its Tax Center in late December, the website registered almost half a million hits in the first month alone.
